

SCRIPT TITLE

Written by

Name of First Writer

Based on, If Any

Address
Phone Number

INT. - DAY

A self shot cellphone video, with the black bars on either side. A gray haired sixty-ish woman is filming herself in a sun filled living room, we can't see much of what is around her because the sun is so bright. This is MARY. She's recording a video message to her nearest and dearest.

MARY

To my nearest and dearest. I hope this finds you well. I'm sorry if this feels impersonal, but I wanted to get this message out to everyone at once. I have cancer, and I've decided not to fight it. My funeral will be May 8th at my home upstate, hope you'll all join me for this celebration of life.

EXT. - DAY

RUSH HOUR ON THE NEW JERSEY TURNPIKE. ALL BRAKE LIGHTS, HIGH TENSION WIRE, AND WHITE SMOKE. PLANES LAND PARALLEL TO THE HIGHWAY AT NEWARK INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT; VOTED BY USA TODAY AS THE NUMBER THREE WORST AIRPORT IN THE WORLD. REVEAL PATRICK

PATRICK IS AN AUTEUR TREMENDOUSLY TALANTED BUT NOTORIOUSLY STUNTED. HE WORKS IN REALITY TELEVISION BUT LOVED SHAKESPEARE AS A CHILD. HES THE PRODUCER OF A WILDLY SUCCCESSFUL EMMY AWARD WINNING "DOCUMENTARY" TELEVISION SHOW. HE IS THE RELUCTANT BOY-KING OF A TRASH EMPIRE, LAUDED FOR SOMETHING HE CAN'T TAKE PRIDE IN. HE HATES HIS SUCCESS BUT REVELS IN THE TRAPPINGS THAT COME WITH IT. EXTREMELY JADED PATRICK HAS TO ACTIVELY WORK TO EMPATHIZE WITH PEOPLE.

We can see PATRICK pulled over and waiting for someone. The first real good look we get of him, he's looking down at his phone. It's clear that he is watching the self shot video from MARY that we just saw. PATRICK fidget, clearly impatient. He begins cursing his sister under his breathe for not being out front already.

PATRICK

Where is this crunchy bitch?

At this point a COP approaches Patricks window.

COP IS FORTYISH SALT AND PEPPER,
ITALIAN LOOKING COP WITH A BIG GUT
HANGING OVER HIS GUN BELT. HE HAS A THICK NJ OR NY ACCENT.

COP
You can't pick anyone up here man.
This is cabs only can't you read?

PATRICK
Hey gimme a break man, I'm just picking up my sister. I haven't seen her in a while, I'm a little distracted.

COP
Oh excuse me, go right ahead. This area is actually for taxis and whiney tracksuit wearing assholes
having existential crises...cabs
only dickhead. Get moving.

PATRICK (stunned. Looks down at his matching designer track suit)
Yes sir.

Patrick begins circling in earnest now. He is getting angrier and angrier. Muttering under his breathe. Bitch. Bitch.
Bitch.

INT. - DAY

A tall, slim, 30ish woman is riding the moving sidewalk. She has a thousand yard stare. Straight ahead. There is a musical cue here as the picture slows down and we push in on her face.

EILEEN IS TALL, 30ISH, AND FIT.
PATRICK'S IRISH TWIN, JUST 18 MONTHS
YOUNGER. A LONG STRUGGLING ACTRESS, AND THE BABY OF THE FAMILY. SHE AND
PATRICK HAVE A COMPLICATED RELATIONSHIP PUNCTUATED BY PERIODS OF CLOSENESS AND ESTRANGEMENT.

EILEEN steps through the automatic doors and its dusk in Newark. With the white smoke and the cogeneration plant in the distance, it looks like some dystopian future city.

Right as EILEEN steps out, PATRICK can be seen, but not heard cursing to himself as he drives right past EILEEN too intent on cursing her, to see her waiting for him. EILEEN sees him cursing to himself and shakes her head. As PATRICK turns to make a second pass, EILEEN loses patience and in a departure from the ice cold thousand yard stare we just saw, she begins to mutter her own stream of curses, in the same halting, half pronounced way as her brother.

EILEEN

Stoner motherfucker. Ugh. There you go.

PATRICK finally sees EILEEN and pulls up to the curb. He jumps out, and grabs her bag and puts it in the trunk. He slams the trunk then turns to his sister. They hug and it's terrible. Like two parking meters came to life and were learning how to hug. They get in the car and pull away.

INT. CAR - AFTERNOON

PATRICK and EILEEN drive in silence. It's a time lapse, dusk to dark, locked off. They drive in silence, never looking at each other, as the sun goes down behind them. Another great musical needed here. They can see the background slowly from our dystopian, future city, into strip malls and fast food joints, until it's finally dark tree lined suburban streets. At this point PATRICK reaches into his track jacket and pulls out a ridiculous vapor pen. It's large, round, and covered in various blinking indicator lights.

EILEEN

Really?

PATRICK

It's medicinal. I have a prescription.

EILEEN

Oh I would love to meet any doctor of yours Patrick I really would.

PATRICK

Good. I'm glad you brought this up. When you see mom, I don't wanna hear any bull shit about holistic cures or Tibetan doctors. This isn't one of the Beastie Boys. This is our mother.

(MORE)

PATRICK (CONT'D)
She's gonna get the cyber knife at
New York Presbyterian.

EILEEN
So surgery? Under the knife right away, she has no options?

PATRICK
They advertise this cyber knife during the Yankee game. It's what rich white guys get.

During this conversation PATRICK has been voraciously puffing on his obnoxious vape pen, filling the car with lemon tinged marijuana smelling vapor.

EILEEN
You're killing me with that thing.
Crack the window please?

Patrick reluctantly rolls the window down, and a stream of vapor exits the vehicle, right as they pass a cop, who immediately pulls a U turn, and hits his lights.

PATRICK
(As he pulls over.)
Great. This is all I need.

EILEEN
(Smirking)
Well, you've been convincing people that you aren't a psycho for the last 30 years, I think you can manage it through one more traffic stop.

COP 2 can be seen approaching them from his squad car. He is a tall broad shouldered small town cop, with his pants neatly tucked into his combat boots.

COP 2
License, registration, and insurance please.

PATRICK fumbles in his glove box, looking for his paper. COP
2 is scanning the car, he notices EILEEN looking upset, but says nothing. PATICK has found his paperwork and shiny metal PBA card, that he shows COP 2 as he hands him his paper work.

PATRICK

Chief McNickel gave me this. I did a little work with him, we might cast him and his wife cast on my new show. The real Police Wives of The Jersey Shore.

COP 2

(looking at the PBA card
with mild disgust.)
Sir, I stopped you because there appears to be a good deal of marijuana smoke coming out of your vehicle.